Rumani - Is a late variety with round shaped fruits that have a very nice sweet taste. It is the most preferred fruit in South India at the end of the mango season in the end of June. This fruit cannot be kept for too long as shelf life is short.

Totapuri - Large fruit (400 g) with small stone. Originated in Chittoor area, one of the most popular table varieties in South India, also widely used for mango pulp industry. Fruits have a typical shape with a tip on the bottom, representing the shape of a ‘parrot’s beak’. It has a typical flavour and flat taste. Flesh is cadmium yellow and fibreless. It is mainly eaten as a mature fruit. The TSS is about 16 to 18° Brix on ripening.

Mulgoa - It is a mid to late season and shy bearing variety. Fruits are round in shape weighing 300 to 350 g on an average. Fruits ripen to yellow green colour. Pulp is yellow in colour with very sweet taste with a TSS of 22 to 23°Brix.

Kalepadu - It is a variety having excellent keeping quality and is sweet to taste. The fruits on an average weigh about 220 to 250 g. It has excellent pulp, which is free from fiber and firm with a pale yellow colour. The medium sized fruit is used both for sales and home consumption; often given away to relatives and friends because of its excellent taste.

Rumani - Is a late variety with round shaped fruits that have a very nice sweet taste. It is the most preferred fruit in South India at the end of the mango season in the end of June. This fruit cannot be kept for too long as shelf life is short.

Desi - This is a special farmer variety only found in the farm of Sri T. Krishna Omkar Bhavan in Chittoor. The fruit looks like Kalepadu but is lighter in colour. Desi means ‘local’ in Hindi.

Baneshan / Banganapalli - Baneshan or Banganapalli is a widely cultivated, early maturing mango of South India. It is the main commercial variety of Andhra Pradesh. Its fruits are large sized, weighing on an average 350-400 g. The pulp is fibreless, firm and yellow with sweet taste. Fruits have good keeping quality. The TSS is around 21°Brix.